Making A Beeline For Success...

With growing interest in the sustainability of the honey industry and the environmental concerns regarding protection of the bee population, it should come as no surprise that businesses committed to traditional, organic based honey production have seen great success recently.

One such business, is Bee All Natural, who have come a long way since its humble beginnings in 2013. They are now one of the most trusted honey producers in Queensland.

The artisan approach adopted in its early days has ensured that the family owned business has a rapidly expanding and loyal customer base.

Based in Jimboomba, it is not unusual for long term customers to travel long distances to the Bee All Natural farm gate shop. Here, they stock up on their favourite honey products, straight from the beekeeper.

In fact, "Straight From The Beekeeper" has become the cornerstone catch phrase that is regularly used to describe their principles and approach.

Head apiarists and the founders, Jason and Natasha Roebig produce every batch of honey by hand using organic methods and traditional techniques.

It was by chance, in 2013 that the inception of Bee All Natural came to be. The initial concept was inspired by Jason and Natasha's daughter. When she was born in 2012, their little girl experienced serious skin sensitivities (eczema) that required concentrated steroid creams for treatment.

After consulting with their doctor and naturopath, the family learned of the healing benefits of raw honey and beeswax. With this in mind, they purchased their first bee hive.

From that single hive, Jason and Natasha were fortunate to collect enough raw honey and beeswax to produce a unique skin balm. It was a natural alternative that successfully calmed their daughter's irritable skin and removed the need to use the concentrated steroid cream.

The couple's interest grew into an ongoing hobby and they began to produce raw honey for their friends and family. However, with glowing reports of their delicious products reaching far and wide, momentum grew. Jason and Natasha purchased additional hives to increase their honey production and fulfill the growing demand for their products.

In 2016, their hobby evolved into a business and Bee All Natural was born.

Over time, demand for Bee All Natural honey and beeswax products increased dramatically. They now supply to retailers locally and nationally, and have recently expanded to include international customers too.

Bee All Natural's ever-expanding product range now includes boutique creamed and infused cold press liquid honey, their ever popular farm gate range, as well as honeycomb and beeswax products.

Never forgetting their grass roots, Bee All Natural maintains it's hands on production process and still offers the full "farm gate" experience to those who visit their home-based shop front in Jimboomba.

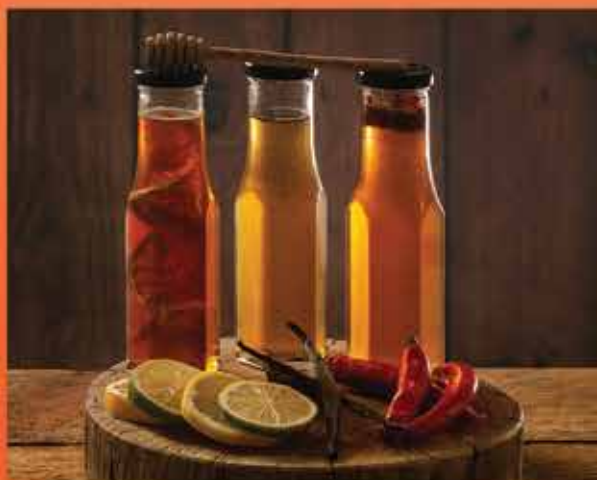

Despite it's success, the family is committed commitment is to continue to use only the sustainable and natural techniques traditionally adopted by beekeepers generations before them.

Of course their initial inspiration is still included in the line up and has been affectionately titled "The Queen Bee" honey and beeswax skin balm.

In the pursuit of producing consistent results and unique products and flavours, Bee All Natural has achieved successful recognition from recognised by their industry peers.

Their multi award winning products have achieved great success taking out category awards at the Royal Queensland Exhibition (Ekka), and the Gold Coast and Beaudesert Agricultural shows.

NATIONALLY FUNDED FLUVAC

Health Minister Steven Miles has called on the Commonwealth to fund influenza vaccines for all young children under the National Immunisation Program, at the recent COAG Health Council.

Minister Miles said it was time for a nationally consistent approach to childhood influenza immunisation programs to protect all young Australian children from the serious and preventable illness.

"The current National Immunisation Strategy is set to conclude in December, and the new strategy needs to continue to drive Australia's outstanding immunisation program," Minister Miles said.

"I am calling on the Commonwealth to fast track the placement of influenza vaccine for all young children on the National Immunisation Schedule to ensure a nationally consistent approach before next year's flu season," Minister said.

"Queensland was one of the first states to implement a childhood vaccination program, and I am pleased to say, similarly to the adult vaccine, we saw huge demand for the paediatric vaccine this year.

"The Palaszczuk Government has already rolled out over 100,000 free flu vaccines for under 5s and flu cases in Queensland this year are down.

"But it's time to take action nationally to provide a consistent approach."

MOONLIGHT WALK FOR MS

Registrations for MS Queensland's 20th annual MS Moonlight Walk are open. The walk on Saturday 6 October, has become an annual MS community event raising awareness and funds for multiple sclerosis (MS). People from all over Queensland join those living with MS in a show of support as we light up the Southbank Cultural Forecourt in a sea of red, blue and white lanterns.

The leisurely 5km or 10km walk around the Brisbane River under the glow of the city is a fun way to share a Saturday night with friends, family and work colleagues. Walkers are encouraged to come dressed in costumes with tutus, tiaras, themed teams and super heroes, all united in support of those living with MS in Queensland!

MS impacts more young people in Australia than any other chronic, progressive neurological disease. It's a life-long and life-changing disease, and the average age of diagnosis is just 30. More than 25,000 Australians are living with MS with more than 10 Australians diagnosed every week and women three times more likely to be diagnosed than men. With no known cause or cure and symptoms varying significantly between those diagnosed, the total cost of MS to individuals and the community is more than $1 billion annually.

With limited government funding for the extensive support services provided by MS Queensland to those living with MS, fundraising activities such as the MS Moonlight Walk are vital. There is currently no cure, though with the right treatment, care and support we can help those living with MS step into a brighter future and the MS Moonlight Walk helps make this possible.

The walk is a stunning visual display as each walker receives their very own MS lantern that lights up the path and signifies unity as thousands gather to walk for a common cause. Beginning at dusk, with lanterns in hand, walkers will take in the best of the Brisbane's River, including the illuminated Kangaroo Point Cliffs, Story Bridge and lush Botanic Gardens before crossing the Goodwill Bridge to continue the fun with entertainment and food stalls at the finish line on the Southbank Cultural Forecourt.

Walk together with hundreds of people living with MS and those who are walking for loved ones, while enjoying a variety of entertainment along the way and complimentary refreshment stations.

Many of the symptoms of MS can be successfully managed and treated, we just need the funding. So help us raise $600,000 to fund vital support services for the more than 3,700 Queenslanders living with MS.

To join the walk to fight MS, raising awareness and funds to support people living with MS, head to MoonlightWalk.com.au now!

What is Shingles?

Shingles (or herpes zoster) is a condition caused by the chickenpox (varicella-zoster) virus and can only occur in people who have previously had chickenpox.

When a person recovers from chickenpox, the virus does not completely disappear from the body but stays dormant in the nerves close to the spine.

However, as a person gets older, it is possible for the virus to reappear in the form of shingles.

Shingles is uncommon before the age of 12 years with most cases occurring in people over the age of 40 years. Second or subsequent episodes of shingles are uncommon with most people only experiencing one bout of the disease in their lifetime. However individuals with weakened immune systems, such as people with symptomatic HIV infection or cancer, may suffer repeated infections.

Signs and Symptoms:

Early signs of shingles include a burning sensation or stabbing pain and tingling or itching on the skin. After a few days, a rash or blisters appear usually on one side of the body or face. When the rash is at its peak, symptoms can range from mild itching to extreme and debilitating pain.

The rash or blisters usually last from 1 to 14 days but can be longer.

Pain and tingling associated with the rash may persist for months to years after the rash has cleared. This occurs in about 1 in 10 cases and is called post-herpetic neuralgia.

Treatment:

Shingles can be treated with antiviral drugs. However treatment should be started within 72 hours of the rash appearing for the most benefit. If you think you have shingles, seek prompt medical attention.

Most treatment is aimed at reducing the initial pain and rash. Other drugs that may be used to help ease symptoms include pain killers and topical ointments.

Shingles to the upper half of the face may cause serious damage to the eye, and medical assessment should be sought immediately.

It is important that the affected skin site be kept clean to avoid secondary bacterial infections. Avoid pricking or scratching the blisters.

Transmission:

Direct contact with the fluid in the blisters may cause chickenpox (but not shingles) in people who have not previously had chickenpox. This is because both diseases are caused by the same virus. In addition to direct contact, shingles can also be spread via the air through coughing and sneezing if the blisters are present in the mouth of the infected person.

People with shingles and who have blisters should not have contact with people who have not had chickenpox or who are unsure if they have had chickenpox.

Prevention:

From November 2016, a single dose of zoster vaccine is funded for all adults aged 70 years of age under the National Immunisation Program. There is a 5 year catch-up program for Evidence suggests a reduced incidence of shingles among healthy recipients of zoster vaccine, although currently there is insufficient information to assess long term effects of the vaccine.

Adults aged 60 to 69 years can also receive a single dose of zoster vaccine unless they have previously received a dose, there is a contraindication or they are immunocompromised. Vaccine is not funded for this group.

Routine use of zoster vaccine in persons aged 50 to 59 years is not recommended. However, individuals who wish to protect themselves may consider receiving the vaccine. Vaccine is not funded for this age group.

People with underlying chronic illnesses such as arthritis, hypertension, chronic renal failure, diabetes and other similar conditions can safely receive zoster vaccine, so long as they do not have a weakened immune system. Please talk to one of our doctors to discuss further.

Zoster vaccination is not recommended for use in people under 50 years of age and is not registered in Australia for this age group.

Zostavax™ contains live attenuated varicella-zoster virus, containing 14 times more virus than childhood varicella vaccines. People with significantly weakened immune systems must not receive Zostavax™. People with weakened immunity should discuss vaccination for zoster with one of our doctors.

people aged 71 to 79 years until 31 October 2021. To receive the funded vaccine, call United Medical Centre North Lakes on 3482 3123. Although the vaccine is provided at no cost, a consultation fee may apply.

NORTH LAKES RESORT GOLF CLUB

Community mobilises over planned closure and redevelopment

Recently North Lakes Resort Golf Club announced that they would shutter the course at the end of 2019 due to continued financial losses citing a trending downturn in golfing for leisure.

The owners have assured residents that the golf course and all of its facilities will continue to operate until then but said in a statement that they have entered an arrangement to redevelop 11 hectares of the of the 57 hectare prime real estate site into an aged care and senior living facility.

"The owners are proposing to sell the course and have entered into an arrangement with The Village Retirement Group for the entire parcel of land. The intent is for more than 85% of the course area to be maintained for environmental protection, publically accessible open space and the possibility of a range of sport and recreation facilities for community use," the statement read.

The Village Retirement Group (VRG) proposal, yet to be entered to Council is a low-density development comprising 200 independent living units roughly in the centre of the current site with an aged-care facility on the southern tip and an environmental restoration project, to make an open space on the finger-like tip that extends toward Endeavour Boulevard.

Despite continued falling interest in the current facility, there has been huge public outcry about the closure. Residents are passionately mobilising under a banner carrying a tagline the lifestyle you promised is about to disappear via a Facebook group called Save North Lakes Golf Course.

On Sunday there was a town meeting at the North Lakes Sports Club. Both speakers and attendees were passionate. It was a call to action. The speakers called on the entire community to come together, to use their professional skills to protest the sale based on the lifestyle promises made as North Lakes was originally developed. Local Matt Williamson MC'd.

"We were sold a dream. Move your family to North Lakes. Bring your business to North Lakes. A new thriving community and at its heart was one of Queensland's best championship golf courses. The North Lakes Resort Golf Club," he said on Sunday.

Mr Williamson stated that estate developer Stockland and real estate agents leveraged their marketing of the area around the Graham Marsh designed golf course and that whether you used the facility or not a redevelopment would have an impact on traffic, noise, wild life, public safety in adjoining areas, and not least of all, the lifestyle you were promised when you bought into the area.

For the development to go ahead after submission, MBRC have to vote and approve. The concern is that once approved, it could open a floodgate of ongoing development on the space, affecting property values across the suburb.

"It's a place where we knew our property values would grow. Because it's based around an asset that would remain an open space," Mr Williamson said.

"We bought into this lifestyle and we paid a premium to do it," he said to cheers from the crowd.

The previous Saturday, hundreds of locals and Federal Member for Petrie Luke Howarth assembled in front of the course in protest of the redevelopment plan. Mr Howarth took to centre of the group advising concerned residents to contact their division councillors throughout the region and the Mayor to voice their objections.

"We need to let councillors know, right throughout the Moreton Bay Region just how important this is to you," Mr Howarth said.

The end goal of this campaign is that the golf course remain a golf course and the community is organising and assembling to that end. You will see signage, letter box drops and more public meetings.

An official State Government petition objecting to the change in the use of North Lakes Golf Course, endorsed by our member for Bancroft Mr Chris Whiting went live and the time of press had over 2000 signatures.

The Save North Lakes Golf Course movement is calling for passionate members of community to donate their time and skills in assistance to the cause. From door knockers, to fund raisers to marketing professionals to those experienced in council application processes.

If you can offer assistance in these matters contact savenorthlakesgolfclub@gmail.com

The campaign to Save North Lakes Golf Course

As most local residents know, we were recently advised of the plan to sell the North Lakes Golf Course to develop an aged care facility on the site.

I, like many residents, strongly oppose this greenspace being developed, even if it just a small percentage of the current golf course. This proposed development stands to significantly change the landscape and layout of North Lakes, which will change the lifestyle you all moved here to experience.

The authority to stop this from happening sits solely with the Moreton Bay Regional Council, however as the local Federal Member for the area I feel strongly that it should remain a golf course and I'm doing my best to help.

I attended the peaceful protest on Saturday morning and spoke to many of you. Thank you to everyone who shared their concerns with me.

Here's an update of what I've done this week to make sure your voices are heard:

- Spoken to Rebecca Levingston and Craig Zonca on ABC 612 Mornings
- Spoken to Ray Hadley on 4BC Radio
- Met the owner of the Golf Course and expressed my desire for the site to remain a golf course
- Written to Mayor Allan Sutherland asking for a meeting to discuss the options
- Written to the State Minister, Cameron Dick asking for a meeting to update him on the situation
- Spoken to the local State MP and asked for him to support the campaign
- Spoken to nine of the 13 Moreton Bay Regional Councillors asking them to vote against the Development Application when it's received

What's Next?

Many people have been asking me what they can do to make sure they're heard. Here's some things you can do to keep this campaign going:

1. Keep going to meetings. A strong showing at these events sends a message
2. Continue to talk to neighbours and friends - many people don't know about the sale so we need to keep telling people!
3. Continue to play golf and use the facilities at the Club. If we want this to remain a golf course it has to be viable.
4. If you aren't already, please join the Save North Lakes Golf Course Facebook page

Rest assured, I will continue to stand with you throughout this process and please don't hesitate to contact me to chat further

MY KIDS ARE WINNERS, OTHERS ARE WIMPS

Hi Leonie,

I am a father of two boys and I have them both playing hockey. I feel that sport is very important for children and I don't think it's a bad thing to teach them to try to win.

We have a culture at our club of celebrating every child which sounds okay, but this makes a lot of the boys on the team complacent and they don't try hard. I encourage my kids to go hard and dominate the game and they are both really good players.

One of the women who has a wimpy kid on the team has said I don't have a team mentality and that I should teach my boys to be more empathetic. I'm a big guy and I won't back down to this woman or anyone else. We have the rules of the game and we don't need anything else.

The thing that's making me so angry is that she said I was raising my kids to be "Heroes" and not team players. Winning is the point of the game and if other kids can't take a bit of argy-bargy they should get off the team. Kids get hurt in all sports and that's the point of playing defence – to not get hurt.

I say that they are raising a bunch of sissies that will never be able to cope in the real world and certainly not protect their families or earn a living because it's a dog eat dog world out there. At the end of the day, I can't make my kids into something they aren't, and they are who they are regardless of what I do, AND they are winners. What should I do then?

Should I teach them to lose in life, give up job opportunities for others, play the martyr? I have done enough psychology units in my day to know about archetypes and that kids are individuals and will be their own archetype. What do you say.

Graham/Kallangur

Hi Graham,

Do you really know enough about archetypes? From what you are saying, I would challenge that. When we are talking about labelling someone a "Hero" a "Rebel" or a "Rescuer" we are really talking about Carl Jung's 12 archetypes that symbolize basic human personality, and the aspects of our personality that pushes our needs and sets our goals. Each Archetype has its own set of values, meanings and personality traits. Individuals may be a mix of archetypes; however, one archetype tends to be stronger.

There are 12 of these Archetypes according to Jung and to be called a hero may not portray the strong character you may think.

When you exaggerate the situation, saying that others are teaching their children to step aside in life, you are setting up a paper tiger and surely on reflection you must know this.

Your boys may be playing to win but are you teaching them to be good team players? Are your boys fostering the development of lesser players on the team? Are they being good role models for the sport and are you encouraging good sportsman ethics?

Parenting in my view can absolutely encourage personality development and archetypes and anyone who doubts this would benefit from watching the Australian Series "The Slap" the character played by Melissa George has a parenting style that is helping to create an out of control, unsocialised and ill-behaved child that disregards the feelings and needs of others. Counsellors see these children all the time and the sad thing is it is invariably the child that suffers because they soon find out they can't get away with certain behaviours in society and life picks up the parenting where the parent left it. These children often have no friends and don't get invited anywhere because they are not liked and at times, depending on the parenting, are too hard to manage and supervise.

The other thing that I would like you to consider is that you say that you are a big guy and you sound as though you are pretty tough. Could you take a moment to consider that this lady was very brave to come and talk to you about the way you are managing your boys and that it took a lot of courage to do so. This tells me that she feels very strongly about this. Why don't you invite her for coffee and really listen to what she has to say. You don't have to agree with anything she says, but wouldn't it be great role modelling for your boys if you taught them to hear others out and talk calmly rather than always shooting from the hip?

ENVIRONMENTAL ENHANCEMENTS FOR PETRIE MILL REDEVELOPMENT

Council to regenerate bushland, creating opportunities for wildlife and recreation

Last week, council awarded a tender worth more than $279,000 for the management of More than 80 hectares of natural areas at the Petrie Mill Redevelopment site

Division 7 Councillor Denise Sims said the project would involve removing weeds, maintaining fire and wildlife trails and creating better opportunities in the future, once current site works are completed, for nature based recreation such as bush walking and bird watching on the site at Petrie.

"Removing weeds is an integral component of natural area management, improving biodiversity, helping natural bushland regeneration and creating opportunities for wildlife to move across the sites with greater ease," Cr Sims said.

"This plan, which adds to the 19+ hectares of weeds removed during 2017/2018 will also ensure the useability of the land for years to come that will cater to the needs of our growing region."

Cr Sims said council has also undertaken a number of initiatives in the local area to help preserve the local environment including:

- 550 koala habitat trees and 5,000 understory species planted across 1.6 hectares at Bickle Road, Murrumba Downs in 2017/2018. This is in addition to the 600 koala habitat trees planted as part of National Tree Day 2016 in John Oxley

Reserve, Murrumba Downs.

- The planting of 6,100 koala trees and plants at 6,300m2 of John H Walker Reserve at Eatons Hill
- 2,200 new trees at Scouts Crossing Road Park, Brendale; and
- The region's first fauna rope bridges near the intersection of Kremzow and Old Northern Road.

"The koala habitat planting in John Oxley Reserve and at Bickle Road, Murrumba Downs continues to enhance the east- west wildlife corridor and is regularly used by koalas.

"The tree and shrub planting John H Walker Reserve is flourishing. We have retained a dense grassy ground cover to provide refuge and foraging habitat for not only koalas by also for wallabies and bandicoots.

"Council also recently commenced the next stage of its koala protection program at the Petrie Mill Redevelopment site following the identification and tagging of 45 mature koalas around the site.

"Council together with Endeavour Veterinary Ecology (EVE) are now tagging koala joeys, in addition to continuing real-time koala monitoring and ongoing veterinary health assessments and treatments to ensure the koala population's health.

"The Petrie Mill Redevelopment site will have more than 110ha of environmental reserve, and also involve the establishment of new koala habitat in degraded areas of the former paper mill site to deliver a net ecological benefit."

The project will commence next month and will take 12 months to complete, weather permitting.

MYTHS BUSTED

Tax season is fully underway but there are a few widely held beliefs that are leaving taxpayers exposed. This year the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) has identified the top 10 tax myths and misunderstandings it says are causing incorrect claims.

"Taxpayers listen to advice from many sources, including tax agents, colleagues, family and friends, and even helpful shop assistants. While some advice is correct, some isn't and it's leading to mistakes and errors that can be costly," Assistant Commissioner Kath Anderson said.

Top of the list is the myth that everyone is entitled to claim a "standard deduction" of $150 for laundry, 5,000 kilometres for cars or $300 for work-related expenses.

"While it's true that you don't need to keep detailed receipts for deductions up to those amounts, it's not an automatic entitlement. You still need to meet the three golden rules – you must have spent the money yourself; it must be directly related to earning your income; and you must be able to show us how you calculated your claim," Ms Anderson said.

One myth gaining popularity is that taxpayers only need to keep credit card statements as proof of claims.

"Around half of the adjustments we make are because taxpayers didn't keep proper records and therefore they could not demonstrate that they spent the money, what it was spent on and how the expenditure links to earning their income. A credit card statement will not usually have enough detail to support the claim," Ms Anderson said.

According to Ms Anderson, some items are claimable for a small number of taxpayers but it's a myth that the majority can claim.

"There are only a handful of taxpayers with special circumstances who can claim things like gym memberships or makeup containing sunscreen. For most, there isn't a link to earning their income."

With more people working from home, Ms Anderson says the ATO is becoming concerned about taxpayers claiming their entire Foxtel or Netflix subscriptions, or their whole phone bill, on the basis that some part relates to earning their income.

Other myths in the top 10 include believing you can claim normal home to work trips, that you can claim plain clothes you wear to work, or claiming hair, clothes and makeup because you have to look good at events.

And if you are thinking of taking a tax-deductible holiday this year, think again because it's a myth that adding a short conference to your holiday will make the holiday deductible.

"One taxpayer recently took his family on a skiing holiday and claimed it was deductible because he attended a conference for a few days while he was there. He wasn't very happy when $23,000 of his $25,000 claim was disallowed."

Ms Anderson warned taxpayers that it's a myth that their agent is responsible for their claims.

"Whether you prepare your own return or you use an agent, you are ultimately responsible for ensuring your claims are correct."

TOP 10 TAX MYTHS

Myth: Everyone can automatically claim $150 for clothing and laundry, 5000 kilometres for car related expenses, or $300 for work-related expenses, even if they didn't spend the money

Fact: the record-keeping exemptions provide relief from the need to keep receipts in certain circumstances. However, they are not an automatic entitlement or a "standard deduction" for everyone. While you don't need receipts for claims under $300 for work related expenses, $150 for laundry and 5000 kilometres, you still must have spent the money, it must be related to earning your income, and you must be able to explain how you calculated your claim.

Myth: I don't need a receipt, I can just use my bank or credit card statement

Fact: To claim a tax deduction you need to be able to show that you spent the money, what you spent it on, who the supplier was, and when the purchase occurred. Bank or credit card statements usually won't contain this information. The only time you don't need these details is if record-keeping exceptions apply.

Myth: I can claim makeup that contains sunscreen if I work outside

Fact: We all like to look good but cosmetics are usually a private expense and the addition of sun protection does not make it tax deductible. However, it may be deductible if the primary purpose of the product is sunscreen (i.e.: it has a high SPF rating), the cosmetic component is incidental, and you were required to wear it because you work outdoors in the sun.

Myth: I can claim my gym membership because I need to be fit for work.

Fact: While you might like to keep fit, there are only a very small number of people who can claim gym memberships, such as special operations in the Australian Defence Force. To be eligible, your job would have to depend on you maintaining a very high level of fitness, for which you are regularly tested.

Myth: I can claim all my travel expenses if I add a conference or a few days' work to my holiday Fact: If you decide to add a conference or some work to your holiday, or a holiday to your work trip, you must apportion the travel expenses between the private and work-related components.

Myth: I can claim my work clothes because my boss told me to wear a certain colour

Fact: Unless your clothing is a uniform that is unique and distinct to your employer, or protective or occupation-specific clothing that you were required to wear to earn your income you, won't be able to claim it. Plain clothes, like black pants, are not deductible even if your boss told you to wear them.

Myth: I can claim my whole Netflix or Foxtel subscription because I need to keep up to date for work

Fact: Unless you only use your subscriptions for work purposes, you will have to apportion the cost between business and private usage, and only claim the work-related portion of your expenses. You will also need to be able to show a strong connection between earning your income and the subscription.

Myth: I can claim home-to-work travel because I need to get to work to earn my income

Fact: for most of us, home to work travel is private since your boss doesn't pay you until you get to work. There are limited circumstances where someone who has to transport bulky equipment can make a claim.

Myth: I've got a capped phone plan, so I can claim both personal and private phone calls

Fact: Unless you only use your phone for work, you will have to apportion the cost between business and private usage and only claim the work-related portion of your expenses.

Myth: If I use an agent, they will take responsibility for my claims

Fact: Even if you use a tax agent, you are ultimately responsible for ensuring the information in your return, including the deductions you claim, is correct. You cannot transfer that responsibility to your agent so make sure you give them complete and accurate information.

JASPER JONES REVIEW

Queensland Theatre's Jasper Jones is Playwright Kate Mulvany's adaptation of Craig Silvey's classic novel of the same name and it opened last week at QPAC's Playhousea full house.

Jasper Jones is both murder mystery and an all-Australian coming-of-age adventure set in the fictional town of Corrigan in 1965. If you've ever taken a step beyond the suburbs you'll recognise this town's all weatherboard, corrugated roofed, old-timey street lights and dusty dry landscape as undeniably Australian. In this landscape lives 14 year old bookish Charlie Bucktin, who despite the title, is the story's real protagonist. Nothing ever seems to happen in Corrigan... Until it does.

Queensland Theatre's Artistic Director Sam Strong previously directed a sold-out production of Jasper Jones for Melbourne Theatre Company, gaining a five star review in The Age, six Green Room Award nominations and led the production to four Helpmann Award nominations including Best Play at Melbourne Theatre Company. Mr Strong once again directs.

The set is such an effective recreation of rural Australia that it's practically cinematic. Sitting straight-on will fill your field of view with Anna Cordingley's evocative Helpmann-Award winning set and Matt Scott's magically ever-shifting lighting hues accented impeccably by Darrin Verhagen's sound and composition. This is a harmony of sight and sound.

Jasper Jones is a rascal but he didn't commit the murder for which he's likely to be blamed. That puts our story in motion when he enlists a reluctant

Melanie Zanetti & Nicholas Denton in Jasper Jones. Pic by David Kelly

Charlie to help solve the mystery. Without spoilers, what follows is subtly clever laundry list of likely suspects (it's less subtle in the book) and a satisfying payoff, despite some dark tones.

Queensland Theatre's Jasper Jones stars an ensemble capable of bringing the story to life, more importantly they're believable and likeable. As the eponymous Jasper Shaka Cook's portrayal is spot on, balancing equal measures persecuted and youthful optimism while Nicholas Denton shines as Charlie in a flawless performance. Rachel Gordon gets a lot of laughs for her turn as Charlie's mum, a relatable mid-sixties archetype and Hoa Xuande radiates charm at Charlie's cricket-loving mate Jeffrey. Melanie Zanetti pulls double duty as both innocent/troubled ingénue Eliza and her murdered sister Laura while chameleons Ian Bliss and Hayden Spencer play various-but-important plot punctuations. Every actor who puts a foot on stage during the 2 hour and 30 minute (with interval) production is as important as the next. The play isn't frugal but there isn't a line without forward momentum.

From narrative, to detail, to the stunning way it's presented - Jasper Jones is uniquely Australian and must see traditional style theatre.

JASPER JONES

Date: 28 Jul to 18 Aug 2018

Location: Playhouse Theatre

The smash-hit stage adaptation of the classic Australian coming-of-age mystery is coming to Brisbane.

Charlie Bucktin lives in a tiny, insignificant bush town where nothing happens. Nothing, that is, until Jasper Jones stumbles upon a gruesome crime out by the dam. Who else would he call on for help but the sharpest kid around? A midnight tap at Charlie's window sparks a race to solve a murder and clear Jasper's name. Somewhere between Harper Lee's To Kill a Mockingbird and classic movie Stand by Me, Kate Mulvany's adaptation of Craig Silvey's novel is a bittersweet, joyous coming-of-age yarn set in a community where every weatherboard house hides a dark secret.

NORTH LAKES COMMUNITY WOMEN'S GROUP INC. NEWS

This week we had the grey matter buzzing as we settled in for a morning of Trivia. Our Trivia Buff Secretary prepared lots of challenging questions for us, as well as some word and famous faces games. There were chocolates in abundance for the winners, and even for those who made up a silly answer in lieu of knowing the correct one. Another fun morning was enjoyed by all.

Tuesday 14th August, 9.30am - Craft & Market Day. We will have some 'pop-up' shops selling locally made goods for our Market Day. For the craft portion of the day, a few of our more talented members will be holding small workshops on such things as drawing and wine glass decoration. Or you can just come along for a chat. Visitors welcome.

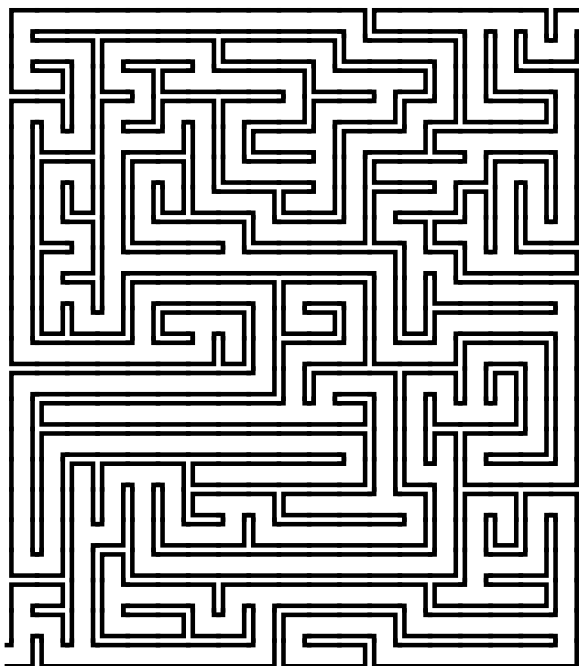

Tuesday 21st August, 10am - Today we will welcome a Guest Speaker from The Travel Team (Over 50's travel specialists). Visitors welcome.

Our meetings are open to all women in North Lakes/Mango Hill-Moreton Bay District. For more information please contact Trish 0447 071 221 or Sue 0418 785 944.

QUEENSLAND LEADS NEW BUILDING APPROVALS

The housing industry experienced a strong month of approvals to end the financial year

The national ABS Building Approvals data was released last week showing the number of new home approvals rising 4.0 per cent in June with Queensland leading the charge during June, up nearly 40%.

The data shows that the number of building approvals in June 2018 was 1.6 per cent higher than in same month last year.

"This increase in building approvals for the end of the financial year makes 2017/18 the third highest year on record for building approvals - after 2014/15 and 2015/16," stated Tim Reardon, HIA's Principal Economist.

"This sustained boom in building activity is unprecedented.

"The growth in the number of new homes available is a major reason why house price increases have slowed over the past year.

"The affordability challenge can only be addressed by allowing the industry to grow to meet the demand for new housing. This includes making more residential land available and reducing the taxation burden on new housing.

"The strength of new home building in Victoria has been the largest driver of the national picture with approvals in that state rising by 16.0 per cent during 2017/18 - and surpassing the record performance of 2015/16. Even a 9.6 per cent drop on the month of June was not enough to offset the strong performance over the year.

"These strong conditions in Victoria are likely to moderate over the remainder of 2018 as the population growth rate slows and the pent-up demand for new housing in Victoria is met.

"South Australia has also experienced a strong year with approvals rising by 11.1 per cent over the year to June 2018, despite a decline of 15.9 per cent for the month of June.

"Conditions are not as strong in all parts of Australia.

"Building approvals in NSW rose 3.0 per cent during June 2018 - but still fell back by 2.0 per cent overall during 2017/18.

"This result is consistent with other indicators showing that the market in NSW peaked toward the end of 2017.

"Western Australia and the Northern Territory have experienced one of the worst years on record with falls of 9.2 per cent and 25.8 per cent respectively, for 2017/18. Encouragingly, both of these markets have seen growth in recent months and hopefully this is a sign that they have passed the worst of their downturns.

During June 2018, Queensland (+37.7 per cent) and the ACT (+5.8 per cent) saw the largest increase in new dwelling approvals followed by WA (+4.8 per cent) and the NT (+4.8 per cent). There was also growth in Tasmania (+3.3 per cent) and NSW (+3.0 per cent). Building approvals fell by 15.9 per cent in SA during the month and were down by 9.6 per cent in Victoria.
